

Tyre Recycler R4 Helps Local Communities Win Prestigious Garden Awards.

R4 employees have gone another step further in doing their bit for the local environment.

We are again working with the local village of Charlestown, to help them improve on last year's runner up prize in the Ulster in Bloom competition. The competition is province wide and helps encourage local towns and villages to work collectively to enhance their local area through gardening and floral displays.

The judges have already made special reference to the clever use of recycled rubber as a garden mulch alternative and also the organisers recycled poem detailing the tyres past and present uses has been much applauded.

Hello, I was once a rubber tyre
And travelled many a road
But now R<sup>4</sup> have recycled me
I help to stop weeds grow!

R4 management were so impressed with the communities efforts on the project that they have this year decided to donate the rubber crumb as a base for an attractive bog oak sculpture as a floral centrepiece.

R4 have also donated the use of their vehicles and employees time to deliver and help plant thousands of plants and shrubs to help the project organisers secure success this year.

This is the third environmental community project in the last few months, R4 having already provided material for the local primary school new exploration area and assisting with the construction of a new recycled section in the winning entry of another garden competition in Enniskillen Co Fermanagh.
